Chapter 1 by Jhagadeswara rao Rajavarapu

I walked past the destroyed building. I was in the old city. It was a city which was being restored. The great war tore this world. The human population went from billions to millions to thousands. All of humanity, in one city, struggling to survive. I had a crossbow in my hand. A lot of the humans went to the forest and became tribes. I was part of the Kepachi tribe, also known as the first tribe.

I just went hunting, but I was threatened by another tribe and ran back. Some people say that the war is still going on, but that's just a myth. I was jogging forward, when suddenly someone grabbed my and everything went black.
